Conciseness
Is the title clear and easily understandable?
Does it avoid ambiguity and confusion?
Descriptive Nature
Does the title accurately describe the main topic and focus of the work?
Does it include key variables or phenomena studied?
Specificity
☐ Is the title specific enough to distinguish the work from other research?
Does it mention the specific aspect or component of the study (e.g., species, process location)?
Keywords Inclusion
Does the title include relevant keywords that will help in search engine optimization (SEO) and academic searches?
Are these keywords commonly used in the field of study?
Relevance
☐ Is the title relevant to the content of the work?
Does it reflect the scope and objectives of the research?
Avoidance of Acronyms and Abbreviations
Does the title avoid or limit the use of acronyms and abbreviations, unless they are widely recognized in the field?
Scientific Rigor
Does the title reflect the scientific rigor of the work?
Does it imply a research question, hypothesis, or method used?
Audience Appropriateness
Is the title appropriate for the intended audience (e.g., researchers, practitioners, general public)?

Scientific Writing	Title Checklist	© Learning Matter
Does it consider the level of ex	opertise of the target audience	ce?
Engagement
Is the title engaging and interecontent?	sting, encouraging potential	readers to explore the
Does it have an element that captures attention without being sensationalist?
Correctness
☐ Is the title free from grammati	cal errors and typos?
Does it use proper scientific terminology and nomenclature?			